- As a Java based Web-Application Alfresco Mobile Workdesk Server generally is independant from the operating system and should run on any plattform as long as executed in one of the supported Web-Application Servers.

- Alfresco Mobile Workdesk Server can run without a database connection. A JDBC connection and a single database table is required for each of the following options:
  Role management
  Persisting of personal preferences
  Anyways, the database vendors from the table above have been tested by QA (using the jdbc driver from the comment column) and there are corresponding scripts provided with any Alfresco Workdesk release to create the required databases and tables for those vendors..
